About this Project

The history of the Wanton-Lyman-Hazard House (WLHH) goes back 327 years. This landmark property has been home to Loyalists, Revolutionary War soldiers, merchants, and generations of Newporters, including enslaved Africans Briston, Jenny, Casen and Cardardo, who lived and labored in the home. As a center for Black History, this treasured property will find a new purpose and provide once more opportunities for the community to explore, learn, and connect.
